

701 QUOTATIONS IN THE APOCALYPSE

THE LIST OF QUOTATIONS

SINCE THE list is in English rather than Greek and Hebrew, there is bound to be some loss of precision in indicating details of language. Also word-order in the English does not follow that of the Greek. Again, unevenness of translation in English in the Old Testament and the Apocalypse might deflect a reader's attention from the fact of there being a quotation. Some readers might unwittingly discard a quotation in the list by allowing these factors—if unrecognised—to classify it as merely an allusive piece of style.

There are still some possible quotations (not listed) for further investigation. Beyond this, there is a projected study on the quotations taken from the New Testament into The Apocalypse.

The preliminary, partial list of quotations circulated at a Llandudno study weekend on The Apocalypse is superseded because another 245 quotations have been added, and ones of the earlier list revised and tightened in the perspective of later study. Also, the numeration on the Llandudno list and the present one is different.
