MEDICAL TERMS

- Typhus – from Greek tuphon, the father of winds.....
- Influenza – from Latin influentia, doctors imagined that cyclical epidemics of flu influenced by stars and planets revolving toward and away from the earth.
- Tuberculosis – of the Latin tuber, referring to the swollen lumps of glands that looked like small vegetables.
- Around 400 BC – Word for cancer first appeared in medical literature: karkinos, from Greek word for "crab."

From The Emperor of all Maladies-A Biography of Cancer, pages 46-48, by Siddhartha Mukherjee, MD

Here's how they look in the lymph

Cancer's endless mutability, its ruthless adaptation to survive, is being matched by resourcefulness. The epitaph of the emperor of maladies has not been written quite yet, but his all-conquering domain is in perceptible retreat.
